

Canal 10 Project Will Conserve, Preserve Water for Community

Kyle Knox
Gila River Indian News

The Pima-Maricopa Irrigation Project's (P-MIP) latest development, Canal 10 in Gila River Indian Community's District 4 Santan broke ground on July 18, marking the beginning of a significant improvement project in the Community.

The new infrastructure will upgrade 11 miles of the existing canal dating from 1877, helping to preserve GRIC water for future generations. In addition, by lining the channel with concrete, Canal 10 will provide water to District 4 farmers and conserve water by preventing loss due to seepage.

According to Gov. Stephen Roe Lewis, the project is significant because it will use nearly $50 million to modernize a canal system that is more than a century old.

"Conserving water is part of our history, our tradition, and our value system, and being stewards of our water, this is a living testament to that moving forward," he said. "And we are fulfilling that obligation by creating a new generation of agriculturalists, water protectors and water conservationists."

The project is one of five capital developments outlined in the 2021 Bipartisan Infrastructure Law. The first—Canal 14 in District 5—broke ground in May.

District 4 Community Council Representative Nada Celaya was happy to see the project begin because it took many years to reach this point. "I want to credit all the hard work that has been done from past to present leadership, including our partners with the Arizona legislators, to go and fight for this success to get this infrastructure built," she said.

P-MIP Project Manager David DeJong also credits Hunter Contracting, the Bureau of Reclamation and Arizona's congressional delegation for securing funding for these plans. "There is no better use of these federal dollars than to conserve precious water resources during this extraordinary drought plaguing the Western United States," he said. "At the same time, the improvements will enable Community growers to cultivate their lands much more efficiently and water-consciously."

Along with water conservation, the project will provide 60 jobs for the Community in both skilled and unskilled labor. This was important for GRIC leadership so it can continue to provide economic opportunities for its members.

DeJong said the project is scheduled for completion in the spring of 2024, adding, "The canal will conserve increasingly scarce water resources, ensuring the Community makes the most efficient use of all its settlement waters."

19th Annual NABI Championship Games Takes National Stage

Emma Hughes
Gila River Indian News

This summer, the 19th annual Native American Basketball Invitational (NABI) returned for a week of exciting on-court basketball action from July 18-23. Over a hundred teams, families, and supporters trekked across Phoenix, filling multiple high school gymnasiums for preliminary games.

This year's event featured numerous off-the-court programming for all athletes from across the U.S. Those activities included an education summit (see page 8), resource fair, and athlete meet and greet (see page 10).

The championship games made history as the first all-Native American sports event to be featured on a national platform when the semi-final and championship games were streamed live on ESPN+ July 22 and 23.

The opening ceremonies for the championship games included color guard duties from Gila River Indian Community's Haskell Osife-Antone American Legion Post 51 and a blessing from former Lt. Gov. Robert Stone.

Girls' Championship

The RezBombers of Phoenix

defeated the Native Soldiers of Florida 70-51, to win the NABI girls championship.

GRIC member Brooklyn

Pablo, 17, District 1, played with RezBombers for this year's NABI tournament. She grew up playing basketball with the support and encouragement of her family, especially her grandmother.

"She pushed me and she built a basketball court in her backyard for me. It was just dirt and a little hoop," Pablo said.

She added, "She's really the reason I'm here. She's pushed me for everything, and she's done everything in her ability to get me to where I want to be."

This year was her second time competing in NABI, although her team didn't make it to the finals last year.

"Just being able to come around and play with other native girls from around, like Minnesota, Utah and Alaska, it's really fun. I get to see all these different girls play, and I've seen a lot of different play styles," said Pablo.

"It's definitely good to bring it back and to bring it home," she added. "I come from Blackwater, and I grew up around my elders in my Community. And growing

Boys' Championship

The AZ Warriors defeated Northern Elite, also from the state, 78-66 in the NABI boys' championship. This is the team's third NABI championship win since 2016; they also won in 2015. In only his second year with the team and first time playing in NABI, Anthony “AJ” Seumanu, District 5, helped lead the AZ Warriors to the championship and was named tournament MVP after scoring 23 points in the title game.

“I’ve been growing up with them [AZ Warriors] when I was a little boy,” said Seumanu, whose older brother also played for AZ Warriors. “I’ve always been watching my brother play NABI, and it’s my time to shine now.”

“It feels great, playing as a team, we stay together. It’s hard to be this far right now, so right now it’s just a team thing,” said Seumanu after a post-win prior to the finals.

GRIC Artist Completes Latest Mural in Downtown Phoenix

Kyle Knox
Gila River Indian News

District 5 artist Angelo Cortez's newest mural, "Homelands," debuted Aug. 1 in Downtown Phoenix's Roosevelt Row Art District. His installation is as part of the yearlong "Uncontained" mural project series. The mural reflects his lineage and connection to ancestral people throughout Arizona and Mexico.

Cortez illustrated his O'otham and Mexica ancestry by depicting night and day on each respective portion. The left presents a daytime O'otham desert landscape adorned with water symbols and a Man in The Maze. To the right is a nighttime portrayal of Central Mexico featuring a pyramid and the serpent deity "Quetzalcoatl" in the center alongside the Man in the Maze.

"I feel really blessed, relieved, and thankful," Cortez said. "It's such an accomplishment for me to have my mural here in Downtown Phoenix, and I'm very happy with the outcome."

He began with an initial outline of the idea, and drawing from his skill sets, he incorporated new designs and motifs. Initially, Cortez didn't have a title for the mural, but as he progressed found "Homelands" to be the most fitting.

After fighting rainy weather conditions, Cortez put in 40 hours of work to complete his installation. It adorns the side of a modified shipping container at Second and Roosevelt streets.

Cortez is the second Community artist featured as part of the "Uncontained" mural project. The first artist was Chadwick Pasqual, District 3, who debuted his installation in February.

Cahokia SocialTech + Art Space sponsors the mural project in collaboration with Roosevelt Row Community Development Corporation (RRCDC) and Xico Arte y Cultura. The project seeks to uplift emerging Indigenous artists and showcase their abilities in Phoenix's historic arts district.

Cortez's art career spans 15 years, and he began painting murals in the last two years. During the production, many onlookers praised the mural and said they were happy to see Indigenous representation in a location with so much foot traffic.

"Indigenous art hasn't been too prominent in this area, so it's really good to see the influx of work here," Cortez said, "Especially since not everyone is aware of the Indigenous histories throughout this area. So it's great when we're able to share our stories through art."

Angelo Cortez stands with his completed "Homelands" mural as part of the "Uncontained" mural project in Downtown Phoenix on Monday, August 1. Kyle Knox/GRIN

Angelo Cortez began his work the morning of July 27 starting with the Quetzalcoatl painting for the Mexica side of the mural. Kyle Knox/GRIN

GRIC Yo-Yo Champ Competes Nationally

Emma Hughes
Gila River Indian News

Gila River Indian Community member and three-time New Mexico yo-yo champion Joshua Salazar, 20, District 5, recently competed in the National Yo-Yo Contest June 24-26 in Mesa.

A graduate of Miyamura High School in Gallup, N.M., Salazar finished with a 4.0 GPA and High Honor award in 2020. Currently, Salazar is a junior at Grand Canyon University in Phoenix.

He was introduced to the yo-yo in fifth grade after seeing a “NED Show,” a character education program for school kids. The program centers around a cartoon character, “Ned,” whose name is an acronym for “Never give up, Encourage others, and Do your best.” “Ned” presents lessons and encouragement to youth while demonstrating yo-yo tricks.

“He won a yo-yo through that assembly, and that’s how it all began,” said Salazar’s mother, Francine Salazar.

The yo-yo came with an instructional kit that taught all the basic tricks such as “walk the dog” and “rock the baby.”

Salazar began practicing consistently, learning new tricks and styles through YouTube videos. His inspiration comes from the current world yo-yo champion, Gentry Stein.

“A lot of what I learned and what I’ve developed is first getting the basics from online and then putting [on] my own personal spin,” Salazar said.

At the competition level, there are five divisions. Salazar competes in the 1A division, a style where the individual performs string tricks with a single yo-yo. At advanced levels, the yo-yo string is tied to the finger to allow competitors to complete more complicated string tricks.

He began competing in 2019, starting with the Arizona State Yo-Yo Contest, where he placed tenth. Salazar went on to compete in the New Mexico State Championship, winning the title three times in a row before entering the 2022 U.S. Nationals.

For the national competition, the first round allows a minute to a minute-and-a-half to perform a routine, typically choreographed to music. It requires creative skills and spatial awareness, and additional scoring is possible based on how well the tricks match the rhythm of the music.

“So, he was serious and he was practicing about five hours a day.” Although he had repeatedly practiced his routine for nationals, Salazar’s yo-yo string became entangled on a necklace he wore, hindering his performance and affecting his final score. As a result, he placed 49th in the 1A semifinals.

In addition to practicing the yo-yo, Salazar works each year as a counselor at a Christian summer camp for students from the Navajo Nation and Zuni and Pueblo tribes, and youths from surrounding areas near Gallup, N.M. He often uses his yo-yo tricks to better connect with the youth and help them develop and improve social and communication skills.

Frequently recognized as the “yo-yo guy” in public, Salazar is often asked to perform tricks on the spot and gets requests to teach others. However, he encourages others to take advantage of technology by watching videos online, like he did, and learning what they can at their own pace.

Gathering Offers Healing for Cancer Survivors and Families

Kyle Knox
Gila River Indian News

Cancer survivor and former Gila River Health Care employee Ditas Fallis gathered with dozens of people for an “Honoring the Journey” healing mass at St. Peter Mission in District 5 on July 23. The annual event honors and commemorates cancer survivors, families and those who have passed from cancer throughout the Community.

At the mass, which was not held the past two years due to the pandemic, the mission’s congregation shared songs and prayers. Fr. Anthony from St. Peter’s Mission oversaw the service and shared his own experience with cancer in his family.

Fallis, who has been in remission since January, said the support from her former patients gave her strength in her journey. They also helped push for her to continue the event when she was ready. “I vowed that if I get healed, I will make sure we start this again,” she said.

Fallis added, “Cancer has not gone away, the pandemic will eventually go away, so it is exciting and important to start the Honoring the Journey again in a good way with a blessing from the church.”

Originally from the Philippines, Fallis started the Honoring the Journey gatherings in 2009 when she worked as the cancer case manager at Gila River Health Care. During that time, she felt there wasn’t enough awareness about cancer in the Community.

“There’s nothing to be excited about when it comes to cancer,” Fallis said, “but we have to start something in order to bring awareness about it. Our first event brought out a lot of people, and it was heartwarming to see how many people were concerned about this.”

Fallis found great support from Gila River Health Care and the Community and decided to continue the gatherings for families and loved ones affected by the illness even after she left GRHC. The last time she held the meeting before this marked the 10th anniversary in 2019.

Ditas Fallis welcomes everyone for the “Honoring the Journey” mass at St. Peter Mission Church Saturday July 23, the first in two years. Kyle Knox/GRIN

MOSQUITO PREVENTION TIPS

- 1 Eliminate standing water where mosquitoes can lay their eggs.
- 2 Keep mosquitoes outside by having well-fitting screens on both windows and doors.
- 3 Change water in flower vases, birdbaths, planters, troughs, and animal watering pans at least twice a week. Be sure to scrub them out when changing water.
- 4 Repair leaky pipes and outside faucets, and move air conditioner drain hoses frequently to prevent standing water.
- 5 Check for items outside the home that collect water, such as cans, bottles, jars, buckets, old tires, drums, and other containers, and get rid of them.
- 6 Spending a short time outdoors can be long enough to be bitten by a mosquito. Take extra care to use insect repellent and protective clothing. When outdoors, use an EPA-registered and CDC-approved insect repellent.

AOPPYC Members Attend UNITY 2022 Conference

Kyle Knox
Gila River Indian News

Sixteen Akimel O’odham/Pee-Posh Youth Council (AOPPYC) members were among 2,000 Native youth leaders from rural and urban tribal communities nationwide who attended the 2022 United National Indian Tribal Youth (UNITY) Conference in Minneapolis July 8-12.

The conference fosters opportunities for youth to engage with each other and promotes leadership development. It also attracts numerous prominent figures from throughout Indian country and hosts diverse activities, workshops and programming.

This year’s keynote speakers included Chef Stephanie “Pye” DeSpain (Prairie Band Potawatomi), winner of Gordon Ramsay’s “Next Level Chef,” and James Anderson (Lac Courte Oreilles Band of Ojibwe), co-founder of the LifeSkills Center for Leadership. In addition, UNITY honored its “25 under 25” awardees, including District 6 youth Jasmine Lamas-Enos.

UNITY featured the AOPPYC during the “Parade of Nations” and shared several O’otham songs and dances during the Cultural Night festivities that week.

For many, this was the first time attending UNITY since becoming AOPPYC members, because the conference was virtual or attendance was limited the previous two years due to the pandemic.

“I believe UNITY was much deserved after all our hard work this year, and to understand the importance we hold as young leaders and bring back the teachings from UNITY to our families and friends, it’s something we’ll always remember,” said District 3 Representative Crystal Lomayestewa.

The conference’s activities and workshops were eye-opening for the AOPPYC members. For example, at-large member Jada Young recalled a panel she attended called “Native Activism Then and Now” featuring renowned activists Winona LaDuke, Madonna Thunder Hawk and Judith LeBlanc.

“It was such a motivational discussion that I feel every Native youth would benefit from hearing,” Young said. “They shared their collective timeline of activism for Native Americans and how it has been beneficial and an influence on our lives now.” She found it inspirational and said it demonstrates young people’s power when overcoming obstacles and fighting for their beliefs.

Associate member and current Jr. Miss Gila River, 1st Attendant Caiden Lewis also learned the value of archiving and preserving Native history. “In our workshop, we learned to preserve our pictures and video recordings both digitally and physically,” she said. “I’m currently using what I learned to safely and carefully preserve old photos and videos I have to show my future kids and help me teach them and others who we were and who we are as O’otham peoples.”

District 2 Representative Junior Pancott is a senior member of the AOPPYC and said the conference gets better each time he attends. He served as the AOPPYC spokesperson for the cultural night, which he said is his favorite part of UNITY, and introduced the AOPPYC before their performance.

“Having the time to share some traditional singing and dancing is always a hit during UNITY,” Pancott said. “Attendees and organizers look forward to it every conference and people were even forming lines preparing for the social giveaway dances.”

The Huhugam Heritage Center (HHC) is now offering private tours by appointment only while it remains closed to the general public. The goal is to provide a safe way to introduce visitors to the museum’s innovative two-story exhibition space that shares the rich history of the Gila River Indian Community.

“Right now, during this time, we’re still under COVID restrictions,” said HHC Director Shirley Jackson.

The center was closed pre-pandemic during a five-year expansion project that was completed and showcased during a soft opening for the Community in January of 2020. It has remained closed since the onset of the pandemic until now.

“We ask that there be no more than 10 people in a group,” Jackson said. “If it’s a larger group, like a different entity or department, then if we can, we can break those groups up into 10 and have multiple tours going at the same time.”

Tours are available Monday–Friday at the available time slots, 9 a.m., 11a.m. and 1 p.m. Tours generally run an hour-and-a-half, and allow time for visitor questions. All individuals are required to wear face masks during their visit.

GRIC member Donald Sabori serves as the HHC tour guide, providing a wealth of knowledge about the items on display and offering personal narratives about life and traditions growing up in the Community.

For more information and to schedule a tour, contact Donald Sabori at (520) 796-3500, ext. 4238, or email Donald.Sabori@gric.nsn.us.

Gila River Indian Community Gov. Stephen Roe Lewis recently landed a key appointment as Chair of the Maricopa Association of Governments' (MAG) Economic Development Committee (EDC). The EDC works to strengthen and diversify the state's economy by bringing together local governments, business leaders, economic development organizations and educators.

Gov. Lewis replaced El Mirage Mayor Alexis Hermosillo and Ray Malnar, Glendale councilmember, was elected as EDC's new vice-chair.

MAG is a regional agency that plans and make policy decisions in the greater Phoenix area. It includes the Gila River Indian Community, Salt River Pima-Maricopa Indian Community, Fort Mc-Dowell Yavapai Nation, 27 cities and towns, Maricopa County, portions of Pinal County and the Arizona Department of Transportation.

As a policy committee, the EDC develops opportunity-specific and action-oriented initiatives that foster and advance infrastructure that would further economic development opportunities.

On Tuesday, Aug. 2, the EDC held its first meeting with Gov. Lewis as chair. The agenda included an introduction to United Aviate Academy in Goodyear and a look at the significant planning efforts for the 2023 Super Bowl in Glendale, which projects a $500 million economic impact.

Gov. Lewis said he is honored and proud to represent the Gila River Indian Community within the MAG-Economic Development Committee.

On Wednesday, July 20, Indian Gaming Association (IGA) Chairman Ernest L. Stevens, Jr. made a stop at the Community's Governance Center to meet with Governor Stephen Roe Lewis.

Ernie Stevens, Jr. is the Chairman and national spokesperson for the Indian Gaming Association in Washington, D.C. Stevens is currently in his ninth two-year term as the organization's leader, a position elected by the member tribes of the Indian Gaming Association.

The IGA serves as a proponent of gaming in Indian country by protecting and preserving the general welfare of tribes striving for self-sufficiency through gaming enterprises. IGA also works with the Federal government and Congress to develop sound policies and practices and to provide technical assistance and advocacy on gaming-related issues.

The meeting prompted helpful discussions concerning the state of gaming and updates that may concern the Gila River Gaming Enterprise.

GRIC Graduates Honored Via Zoom

Emma Hughes
Gila River Indian News,

The Gila River Indian Community's Tribal Education Department (TED) celebrated the academic achievements of 170 high school graduates and 70 graduates of junior colleges, colleges and trade schools during a virtual celebration on July 28. Held via Zoom and streamed by the Gila River Broadcast Corp. The event brought together graduates, family, friends and staff for an evening celebration.

"They were resilient," said TED Director Isaac Salcido. "They persevered, they stuck to it, but many people thought that they would not be able to do the things that they did. Not only did they accomplish them, but they surpassed many, many people's expectations."

Lt. Gov. Monica Antone also spoke, saying, "We share our intense emotions as we close a chapter in your life story, and more importantly, you are special as you graduated during a time where the world faced enormous challenges with the COVID-19 pandemic."

Students were also highlighted during the celebration. Jasmine Lamas-Enos, a recent graduate from Cesar Chavez High School, spoke about her journey and shared some of the hardships she encountered along the way.

Though she was very excited to start her high school experience, make lots of friends, and join a few clubs, she faced many challenges, brought on by the pandemic. "I worked really hard, [but] when I became a sophomore, I quickly realized that school just became too much for me," said Lamas-Enos.

"I would say it was worth it, even though it caused me lots of stress," she added. "It was extremely difficult for me to focus on my studies, especially because some of my family members passed away."

Gov. Stephen Roe

Lewis congratulated the students and commended them for their hard work and perseverance.

"We're so proud of everything that you've continually had to overcome to be here among our Community," he said. "Whether it was close to home or far from home, Community members, I know your educational experiences have enriched your life in many ways that you will carry with you."

"Be proud of yourself and take time to celebrate your accomplishments," Gov. Lewis added. "The Community is here to support you, for you to follow your dreams. Never forget where you come from and always, always stay Gila River strong."

NABI Education Summit For Youth Athletes

Gila River Indian Community Gov. Stephen Roe Lewis appeared at the Native American Basketball Invitational (NABI) Education Summit at Phoenix College on July 18. He welcomed the numerous Indigenous youth players from tribes around the nation in town for the tournament that week.

During his opening remarks Gov. Lewis acknowledged Phoenix as the ancestral homelands of the O'otham and Pee-Posh of the Gila River Indian Community and the Salt River Pima-Maricopa Indian Communities.

"You all represent your tribal nations back home, and whether it's basketball or any sport, it goes back to our traditions of running, our songs, our ceremonies or being active," Gov. Lewis said to all the young athletes. "I know those traditions are alive in each one of you."

Later, Gov. Lewis stressed that youth should use NABI as an opportunity to further their education so they may succeed as the next generation of leaders. "Hopefully, you can learn something and take that back to your own journey," he said, adding they should live up to the promise that their ancestors laid at their doorstep.

NABI sponsored the summit with Partnership with Native Americans (PWNA) to bring together school representatives, speakers and other guests to address the youth. They delivered remarks aimed at influencing the young competitors to explore their athletic talents while pursuing higher education after high school.

Joshua Arce, CEO of PWNA, said, "The NABI College and Career Fair is a chance to bring together Native youth full of talent and potential and expose them to various pathways," said Arce. "Representation matters, and the success of previous NABI alumni point to the ways in which this educational experience has impact for years to come. Partnership with Native Americans is proud to sponsor such an important event."

As part of the Native American Basketball Invitational (NABI) weekly activities, the organization, in collaboration with Nike N7, held an athlete appearance at the Nike Factory Outlet at the Phoenix Premium Outlets at Wild Horse Pass in Chandler on July 21. The event drew numerous players from the tournament and featured Oklahoma City Thunder player Lindy Waters III (Kiowa/Cherokee), Troy University Women's Assistant Basketball Coach Chelsea Dungee (Cherokee), and Analyss Benally (Navajo), who plays professionally in Europe. Attendees participated in a question-and-answer panel and inspired everyone to consider their education while pursuing athletics. Afterward, they signed autographs and took photos with fans.

Gov. Stephen Roe Lewis is welcomed everyone to the event. "It's an amazing opportunity for our Community to host this event," he said. "This is the only Nike outlet in Indian country, and it's located here in the Gila River Indian Community. As part of our outlet and partnership with N7, we carry their merchandise here. And [our] Community is proud to host you all here tonight."

Analyss Benally shared her experiences and new career as a Native player in Europe. The former Division 1 college basketball player from San Jose State University and NABI alumnus, was born and raised in Shiprock, N.M., on the Navajo Nation. She is currently finishing her rookie season for CSM Alexandria in Oradea, Romania.

"It's really special, because you don't see a lot of people that look like us and are doing these things," Benally said, "so the fact that I'm able to play overseas means a lot to me."

Addressing up-and-coming players, Benally said, "I say, master what you're good at, make sure you're getting film of yourself, make sure you're getting yourself out there, spreading the word of your talent."

Hoop stars Lindy Waters III and Chelsea Dungee signed autographs for everyone in attendance during the meet and greet portion of the evening. Kyle Knox/GRIN

GRIC Member and MMA Fighter Deran Martinez Makes Pro Debut

Emma Hughes
Gila River Indian News

Mixed martial arts (MMA) fighter Deran Martinez of Gila River Indian Community's District 5, officially signed on as a professional fighter under First Round Management in November 2021. Last year, he ranked No. 1 in the state's amateur heavyweight division and No. 22 among U.S. Southwest Amateur Heavyweights.

"I just always been attracted to combat sports and wrestling. I grew up watching a lot of the UFC, wrestling and just different kinds of combat stuff," said Martinez, who began wrestling during high school.

"Once I was able to be on an actual team, I was able to do that, and I just always kind of had a passion for it."

On June 17, Martinez made his professional fighting debut for CES Boxing and MMA on the UFC Fight Pass in Rhode Island. Unfortunately, Martinez fell to his opponent, Fran Collins. But he looks forward to continuing his career on the national stage.

In 2015, Martinez joined a gym, started training and began amateur fighting in 2017, holding a winning record for two years.

"It's just me fighting, but you know, my family, my friends, the Community, a lot of people who support me, they are along with me on this journey as well," said Martinez.

TRW & BPSC HOST BASKETBALL CLINIC FOR THE YOUTH

Submitted by
Tribal Recreation and Wellness

On Saturday, July 23, 2022, Gila River Tribal Recreation & Wellness hosted their very first summer basketball clinic for youth ages 5-6 and 7-9 year olds at the new District 3 Gymnasium. The basketball clinic was open to all federally recognized youth and due to COVID-19 Safety restrictions, was limited to 20 participants per age group. The youth had the opportunity to work with Coach Maurice Brown and Ryan Brown of Brown Performance Strength and Conditioning. The children began with warm up exercises before starting the drills. Drills consisted of dribbling, handling of the ball, and movement. The children also gained experience in following directions and working as a team. The clinic was an opportunity to show the youth the fundamentals of basketball and to be encouraged to try something new. "That's our job as parents, teachers, and coaches to continue to have them keep motivated and learn more when they are encouraged," said Huey Duane Guy TRW Recreation Coordinator. TRW plans to host future clinics for more age groups with the continued partnership between TRW and BPSC.

Downtown Phoenix Businesses, Entrepreneurs and Creatives Collaborate to Bring Indigenous Peoples' Day Celebration in October

— The celebration will be free and open to the public —

Submitted by
Cahokia SocialTech + Artspace

Phoenix, Ariz. (July 12, 2022) - Cahokia SocialTech + ArtSpace, named the Best Place to Discover Emerging Artists by Phoenix magazine, announced Indigenous Peoples' Day Phoenix Fest on Monday, October 10, 2022. Cahokia co-founders Eunique Yazzie and Melody Lewis have partnered with the Roosevelt Row Community Development Corporation (RRCDC), The Churchill, NDN Collective, Native Guitar Tours, Seven Layer Army skateboards, and many others to create a celebration honoring this nation's First Peoples.

The event is free, open to the public, and will be from 3:00 p.m. to 10:00 p.m. It will feature a vendor market, food trucks, skateboard demos and competition, a community zone, Indigenous film screenings with Indie Film Fest, and musical guests on the Main Stage. The Churchill will be the host site for a paid VIP experience that includes an Indigenous fashion show and select musical artists on the NDN Collective Premiere Stage. More information about the VIP experience including ticket prices and performances to be announced in August.

"Indigenous Peoples' Day is about celebrating the indigeneity of people all over the world. This includes Indigenous people belonging to non-federally recognized tribes, First People of other countries, and the 574 federally-recognized tribes in the United States; 22 of those tribes are here in Arizona," said Lewis. "The festival will provide an opportunity to see and hear accurate representation of the wide diversity of Indigenous cultures, languages, and expressions of art."

Yazzie, who is a board member with RRCDC, initiated a collaboration between Indigenous creatives and social entrepreneurs to pivot the artistic and cultural direction during COVID. "As the downtown landscape was changing, the RRCDC recognized there were opportunities to align with communities who shared the same goals. We decided to partner with Cahokia SocialTech and Artspace to fully visualize the mission of advancing arts-focused initiatives for artists, entrepreneurs and residents, cultivating creative space within the Roosevelt Row Arts District," said Yazzie.

The planning committee of this year's event is 90 percent Indigenous and includes collaborative efforts from over 40 ambassadors and 15 members of Cahokia representing Indigenous-owned businesses and organizations. Other out-of-state organizations like NDN Collective and New Mexico Community Capital are providing additional resources and opportunities to amplify civic engagement efforts during the event.

"We are proud supporters of Indigenous excellence, especially in art, entertainment, entrepreneurship, and sports and we believe that by gathering and celebrating who we are today, we can continue building Indigenous power, one community at a time. We are even more proud to continue supporting Cahokia SocialTech + ArtSpace as they strive to create space for free and liberated thought and expression. We look forward to the opportunity to meet and learn more about the Phoenix area Indigenous community," said Lycia Maddocks, Political Director and Head of Policy Advocacy at NDN Collective. For more information please visit the event website at www.ipdphx.com.

THINGS TO KNOW & SHARE ABOUT MONKEYPOX

August 4, 2022

1 What is monkey pox and how does it spread?

Monkey pox is a viral disease that infects animals like rodents and monkeys and can spread to humans. Although monkey pox occurs predominantly in Central and West African countries, majority of the cases in recent global outbreak are reported in U.S and Europe. As of 8/3/22, over 6,600 cases in U.S and 85 cases in Arizona have been reported.

Monkeypox can spread to ANYONE

- Through close skin to skin contact with monkeypox rash, sores, or scabs.
- Through respiratory droplets or body fluids during intimate physical contact .
- Contact with fabrics, objects, or surfaces contaminated with the monkeypox virus (such as clothing, bedding, or towels)

2 What are the signs and symptoms?

- Fever
- Rash with firm bumps on face, hands, feet, body, or genitals
- Swollen lymph nodes
- Chills
- Low energy

3 What Should You Do If...

You've been in contact with someone who received a diagnosis of monkeypox or has a similar rash?

- See your health care provider for further evaluation, monitor for symptoms
- Avoid physical contact, including sex or intimate contact, with anyone until you have been checked out

You have a new or unexplained rash or sores?

- See your health care provider for further evaluation
- Avoid physical contact, including sex or intimate contact, with anyone until you have been checked out

You have been diagnosed with monkeypox?

- Isolate from others and follow treatment recommendations from your provider.
- Avoid physical contact, including sex or intimate contact, with anyone until all sores have healed and a fresh layer of skin has formed

4 Treatment

There are no treatments specifically for monkeypox virus infections. Antiviral drugs and vaccines developed to protect against smallpox can be used to prevent and treat monkeypox. Vaccines and medicines are prioritized for those people who have had known exposure and are at risk for severe disease from monkeypox (such as people with underlying chronic health conditions or weakened immunity)

5 Prevention

- Avoid close physical contact with people who have symptoms, including sores or rashes
- Talk to your sexual partner/s about any recent illness and be aware of new or unexplained sores or rashes
- Avoid contact with, contaminated materials
- Wear PPE (mask, gloves, gown) if you can't avoid close contact with someone who has symptoms
- Practice good hand hygiene
